Message From Our Musical Director

Welcome to our eighth season of great chamber music concerts in the Niagara Region! We have a fantastic year of music making ahead of us, and to start the season, we've invited pianist David Louie back to perform another of Brahms' fabulous piano quartets, a continuation of our Brahms piano chamber music cycle. In the New Year we're joined by members of the Niagara Symphony who will perform a wonderful programme of French chamber music selected by the Symphony's music director Daniel Swift. Then our winter relief concert will feature one of Beethoven's most popular pieces of chamber music, the Archduke trio. To end the season we're featuring recorder virtuoso Alison Melville in music of Vivaldi and his contemporaries, played on period instruments.

Thank you to all of our subscribers who returned our survey last spring. We received many wonderful suggestions and have begun to implement some of them. The most noticeable change is our name. We've dropped the word association and, at the suggestion of a creative subscriber, have adopted the name The Gallery Players of Niagara, which nicely represents our commitment to performing in the Niagara Region! On behalf of all of us in the Gallery Players I invite you to attend and enjoy- even be inspired by - the wonderful performances this season promises.
